In the past, a TVC test system had to be designed and produced for each individual rocket.  Last week, the Waveland Board of Mayor and Aldermen discussed a number of topics including utilizing outside janitorial services to clean city facilities and approved a change order for the scope of work for the Herlihy Street Area Sanitary Sewer Improvements project.
 Alderman Jeremy Burke said he has heard complaints about the cleanliness of the bathrooms at the city's facilities.
 "It might be a losing battle with the amount of personnel and the amount of things that need to get done," he said.
 Next month, he added, the city will assume responsibility of the restroom at the Waveland Lighthouse.

Visit Mississippi Gulf Coast pledges 'A promising new year for the Tourism Industry'

SEA COAST ECHO

With the new year just around the corner, Visit Mississippi Gulf Coast (VMGC) this week reported that 2019 "looks to be a very promising year for the region's tourism industry, with numbers predicted to surpass those of 2018."

As Q1 of FY19 draws to a close, occupancy tax revenue received in December for October room sales was strong, coming in at 27 percent above prior year October tax revenue, VMGC said in a press release.

"VMGC's sales team has been working hard and, with two weeks left in the month, definite booking room nights have already exceeded Q1 of FY18 by 16 percent," according to the release. "The sales pipeline is also looking strong heading into Q2 of FY19, as the number of tentative room nights has increased by 47 percent."

"We have spoken to several hotels across the region, and have received extremely positive forecasts for 2019," said Milton Segarra, CEO of Visit Mississippi Gulf Coast. "From what we have heard so far, 2018 seems to have been a positive year for the hotel industry, exceeding budgeted occupancy and revenue, and seeing an increase in results over 2017. We look forward to seeing an ever further increase in 2019."

Traffic to the gulfcoast.org website in 2018 is at 1.7 million users, an increase of 18 percent over 2017, VMGC officials said: "This increase is thanks to the growing number of travel decisions made based on information found online, and VMGC's advertising efforts directing potential visitors to www.gulfcoast.org for information on all three Coastal counties.

In the run-up to a full rebranding, VMGC saw a busy 2018, working with elected officials, stakeholders, multiple agencies, and industry professionals to evaluate the Mississippi Gulf Coast as a brand, with the overall goal of significantly increasing visitation and impacting the region's economic development. The brand will be launched in March of 2019.

"Working together is the key to bringing more visitors to the Mississippi Gulf Coast, and we look forward to an exciting future of increased visitation, deepened partnerships and broadened horizons," said Segarra.

Fire destroys scenic Logtown bridge

BY STACEY CATO

Hancock County firefighters used unusual resources to help fight a blaze Friday night in Logtown.

Just after 6: p.m. Friday, officials received a call of a bridge burning in Pearlinton.

The burning bridge firefighters were tasked to fight is known as Scenic Bridge.

It is part of the scenic byway which includes six routes that cover more than 30 miles through or near the NASA Stennis Space Center's 125,000 acre buffer zone.

Due to the heavily wooded area, fire fighters could not reach the flames to fight the fire with their trucks, so they had to walk.

"We couldn't see the fire when we pulled up," Bayside Fire Chief Tony

The scenic Logtown bridge burns Friday.

Johnston said, "because of the location. We walked a good 150 yards, I guess, down the bridge before we could find the flames."

Johnston used a ladder to help firefighters get up to the elevated structure.

Once they reached the burning section of the bridge, they found the fire was burning on both sides. They then had to figure out how to fight the flames.

West Hancock Fire Chief Glen Sigur carried a bucket he had tied with a 20-foot rope. He then personally lifted buckets of water from the bayou below, raising each bucket about 12 feet up the elevated bridge.

Other firefighters used a chainsaw, then cut the bridge in sections then raked it all into a pile making it easier for the chief to carry buckets of water to one location to help douse the flames.

Much of the bridge was saved because of the firefighters' quick thinking.

Although it currently cannot be traveled from side to side on foot because the middle section burned, you can still walk down it. A rope secures each end where the bridge was burnt.

West Hancock and Bayside Fire & Rescue fought the flames.

The cause of the fire is currently under investigation.

gather specifications and present it before the board.

In a separate matter, the board discussed Change Order No. 3 from DNA Underground for an increase in the contract price regarding an expanded scope of work for the Herlihy Street Area Sanitary Sewer Improvements project in the amount of $234,410. The work includes 900 additional feet of new sewer line to Edna Street. The additional work will not be funded by SRF funds, but covered by the city's utility fund.

Smith said that will remove seven homes from the grinder system.

Mickey Lagasse said the change order is necessary and will benefit the city.

Lagasse said the first cost that the contractor originally gave for the additional work was $193,000.

The difference is that the contractor will be removing the grinder pumps, Lagasse said.

The board unanimously approved the change order.

The board also approved Amendment No. 1 to the Standard Form of Agreement between Waveland and Compton Engineering for additional engineering services regarding the Herlihy Street Area Sanitary Sewer Improvement project to provide design, RPR, and contract administration for the Edna Street Sewer Extension in the amount of $36,333.

In other action:

The board approved a motion authorizing Smith to sign a notice of award letter to the DNA Underground for construction related to the Waveland Avenue Sidewalk project. A notice to proceed is expected to be issued in January.

The Oath of Office is scheduled for Friday, Dec. 28 at 7 p.m. at the Waveland Civic Center (Ground Zero Museum).

The next meeting is scheduled for Jan. 8 at 6:30 p.m.

Have a safe and Happy New Year!!!

The celebration for the year 2017 will begin with a long weekend, which is something many folks are looking forward to, yet – in many cases – a long weekend can turn into a tragedy because of vehicular accidents.

Many of those accidents are caused by people drinking and driving, both on the road and on the water.

Law enforcement officers from several different agencies will be out in force to try and prohibit accidents both on the water and on land.

Still, even those who do obey all traffic and boating laws need to be extremely careful over the next few days because of those who aren't so careful.

It seems that 2018 has brought more fatalities than I can ever recall in just one year and that's a serious problem.

Life is very precious, and death caused by a drunk driver causes a monumental amount of grief for friends and family members of the victims.

Drinking and driving – or boating – is simply an unnecessary evil.

People like to party and have a good time, and that's only natural, but there just seems to have been far too many deaths in our county and all over the state and nation in 2016.

Alcohol and/or illegal drugs seem to be involved in many of the shooting deaths that have occurred this year, as well.

We in the news business like a good story, but we do NOT like to cover shootings or traffic fatalities.

Many police officers have also been killed across the nation this year.

We have to think about what the future will bring for today's youth. While our education levels have increased tremendously over the years, so has the access our children have to drugs, alcohol and other negative influences.

I hope that each one of you will have a great holiday weekend and really enjoy yourselves responsibly.

My brother Raymond and I have been talking a lot lately about the many things that we had to do as kids growing up in Waveland in the midst of the Great Depression. We had a lot of responsibilities

Some things get fresher each year

Some confessions are of the choking kind much more for the confessor than for the penitent. Over many decades, it slowly dawns on a confessor how holy some penitents are and how blessed the confessor is to be in the company of such a penitent.

A striking instance occurred just before Hurricane Camille sacked the Gulf Coast with sustained winds in excess of 200 miles an hour on August 17, 1969.

A charming, elegant lady had dropped by Saint Augustine Seminary in Bay Saint Louis, Mississippi for confession. The amazing thing was that, after struggling to remember what sins there were, she had none to tell! Considering that she had neither a memory problem nor any intelligence deficiency, I was profoundly impressed. That episode soon served to console the lady's bereaved husband.

Having survived Camille's fearsome storm surge by bobbing up and down all night with some friends in one of the craft from his sports boat company, that now widowed man, seeking solace from someone who knew his wife, came to visit me at Xavier University in New Orleans whither I had gone to be chaplain on August 24. He had lost his wife, one of their twin girls and infant grandson with ten friends.

So heavy and tearful that he could hardly speak, he told his agonizing tale of woe, family disintegration and property devastation. After helplessly hearing his 12-year-old daughter screaming through the night, at dawn his breath was taken away by the sight of a half-fallen pine tree with a large water moccasin coiled and resting partway up, and his daughter, stripped by wind and water of everything but her panties, clinging desperately to the higher portion of the tree.

He simply lost it while trying to speak about his wife. At that point, I told him about his wife's visit to me at the seminary. Referencing the confession, I remarked, "All I can say about your beloved wife is that you married an angel." Though still sad, his face, eyes and whole demeanor changed for the better from that moment on.

Such sacred moments in the confessional have graced me off and on over the decades. Just this week, at the conclusion of the Holy Ghost Church Advent revival, there were two instances where a penitent struggled, stammered, stopped, then admitted that there was only the remote past when maybe a wrong had been done.

I sat there greatly pleased, in full admiration of the humble penitent before me.

And, of course, I had remarked in a pre-confession talk that, once God has forgiven us, it is totally undesirable to show doubt for God's mercy by dredging up the past and rehashing it all over again. Unlike us vengeful, oft unforgiving human beings, God holds no grudges, but forgives us unconditionally. We must not destroy our peace of mind and soul by repeating our past sins to make doubly, triply and more times sure that God has finally forgiven them. Create a spiritual firewall on this date, beyond which you will never return to doubt God's merciful forgiveness.

The parish revival was a fruitful journey in which, as most missionaries, I saw that I was speaking first to myself, then only secondarily to the faithful gathered there in encouraging numbers. With my own soul converted anew and revived, I could then go about the task of converting and reviving others.

We shared an abundance of smiles and puzzled brows, sighs and moans, some Amens, occasional laughter, and a refreshing number of sotto voce comments that I cajoled the folks into saying aloud. The best things we heard were affirming remarks about how good it was to be there with faithful, caring sisters and brothers.

Yes, we had a rousing time dialoguing, praying, singing the Good news and just giving thanks and praise to God. We reviewed our own self-doubts, wondering whether we were born to lose, whether we had lived our life in vain,

The Blessings of Liberty Are Not Guaranteed. We Must Continue to Defend Liberty

The battle to preserve our natural rights of life, liberty and property is as arduous today as it was 242 years ago, when George Washington and his men made a daring defense. Though we don't fight our would-be rulers with muskets and bayonets today, we remain in a war to defend our constitutional rights from those who would continue to challenge them.

Our weapons today are different but our commitment to win must be no less earnest.

Our founders understood the high purpose and necessity of such a defense. They knew the opportunity of a constitutional republic was won by their generation but that it would also require an ever-vigilant citizenry to defend it from well-meaning but power-seeking governments, generation after generation.

As active and engaged citizens, we have a role as defenders of the blessings of liberty for all Mississippians. Whether a lawyer representing an entrepreneur who is prevented from starting a business by unnecessary and burdensome regulations, a policy advocate working with members of the legislature to push for limited government, a community activist working to ensure equality under the law, or an ordinary citizen writing an Op-Ed for the local newspaper, we're all defending our shared blessings of liberty.

These blessings were not granted to us by government; they are natural to each of us as individuals. And none of us can be denied these blessings or given any modifier that makes our blessings preferable or subordinate to any others'.

As we celebrate the eternal blessings of the Christmas Season with family and friends, let's take the time to think about that incredible crossing on Christmas night, 1776. When the hopes of independence lay in the balance, our country's first president planned and executed the bold attack on the

MARGUERITE GARRETT TRAHAN

MARGUERITE GARRETT TRAHAN

Marguerite Garrett Trahan was born on February 16, 1934, to the late Clarence and Genevieve Garrett in Bay St. Louis, Mississippi, the third oldest of six daughters and a son. She died on December 16, 2018.

Marguerite attended and graduated from St. Rose de Lima High School in 1952. She excelled in her studies and loved singing in the choir and playing basketball. After completing high school, she and her sister Rose Marie attended Bestida Beauty School in Mobile, Ala., staying with their cousins, the Davises. The sisters, with their dad's help, opened Garrett's Beauty Parlor in 1953, beautifying many ladies in their Bay St. Louis community.

Young ladies on the Coast had an opportunity in the late '50s and '60s to attend dances and concerts at Keesler Air Force Base. Marguerite was one of many who rode the Keesler bus to the base. She met the love of her life, Joseph Trahan, at one of those dances. They married in 1956 and soon moved to Houston, Texas.

She and Joseph lived happily in the Houston area raising their four children until his death in 1984. A few years later, she and her family moved back to Bay St. Louis until Hurricane Katrina brought them back to Houston. After several years, her sons and a daughter moved back to Bay St. Louis, where she resided until her death.

During Marguerite's lifetime, she was employed with General American insurance and later Spring Branch Medical Center. In Bay St. Louis, she worked many years for Fr. Theriault and Fr.

Sebastian as their housekeeper until retiring. In her retirement, she loved watching cooking and cops shows, and please don't leave out Judge Judy. She enjoyed cooking, baking and spending time with her children and grandchildren.

Marguerite donated her body to science.

Marguerite was preceded in death by her loving husband, Joseph; her first-born son, Mark Joseph; her parents, Clarence and Genevieve; and four sisters (Mary Catherine, Barbara Jean, Joann, and Valerie). She leaves to mourn one sister, Rose Marie, and her brother, Leo Paul. She also leaves her sons, Andre and Kenneth, and daughters, Marissa and Lisa (Harold); many loving grandchildren, great-grandchildren and one great-great-grandchild; and a host of nieces, nephews, cousins and friends.

A Memorial Mass in loving memory of Mrs. Marguerite Trahan will be held Saturday, Dec. 29, 2018. Rosary will be from 9:30-10 a.m. and Mass at 10 a.m. at St. Rose de Lima Church in Bay St. Louis. Rev. Augustinos Seran, SVD, will be the celebrant.

British.

George Washington led famished, cold, tired men across the Delaware in the darkness as rain turned to sleet and then to snow, and the winds blew without relief. The American colonists prevailed in that fight at Trenton and eventually, thanks to a spirit that would not be subdued, our independence was won.

With that enduring spirit in mind this Christmas season, we should take the time to recognize how rich our blessings are and how worthy of a robust defense is liberty.

Life

wasted our life, failed to find love and the American dream, failed to become all that we could be, and, most importantly, fallen short in our ongoing quest to become like Jesus.

With no exception, each of us had come looking for love and healing of mind, nerves, emotions, body and soul. By God's grace, we in turn are a healing to one another by the unction of our voice, especially in saying "Forgive me," "I forgive you," "I love you and I thank God for you," "I want to serve you in any way I can."

Jesus put healing in our hands, arms, eyes, smile, dancing feet and loving heart.

Especially for those moving along in years, we welcomed the opportunity to find someone to dance with us through the end of our sojourn here into eternity and the Land of the Living, as a man four years my senior did with me in Fort Worth.

Quotes

in those days, not because we wanted them, but because they were necessary for our family's continued survival.

We take great satisfaction in the fact that we and our two other brothers benefitted from that early training. Of course our youngest brother, Felton, has passed on, while brother Clemence is in a VA hospital in North Carolina.

Ray and I both think that our younger generations are really missing out on a lot and wonder who is going to do the necessary work for our country to survive.

Don't misunderstand me – yes, education is vitally important for our nation's progress – but there are all types of industrial jobs that also have to be done to keep our nation great.

I guess as the old saying goes, "it will all come out in the wash."

performed the unprecedented run of tests with an AR-22 engine on the A-1 Test Stand. The test series was part of DARPA's effort to develop a low-cost, reusable launch vehicle system for delivering small satellites into orbit.

First-ever Stennis engineer to receive the Women of Color Professional Achievement Award. The award bestowed on Dawn Davis is one of the most important honors in the STEM (science, technology, engineering and mathematics) field. Davis received the honor during the 23rd Women of Color STEM Conference in October.

First visit of new NASA Administrator Jim Birdenstine to the rocket engine test site. During the day, Birdenstine viewed the first hot fire in a new series of RS-25 engine tests. "What the power of this RS-25 engine represents is America's ability to fly deeper into space than we ever did before," he said after the hot fire. "This was a great test."

"It is difficult to sum up 2018 for Stennis Space Center with a single word or thought because we saw so much accomplished," Gilbrech said. "It was a productive and gratifying year that saw Stennis continue to build on its expertise as the nation's premier rocket engine test site."

In addition to the list of firsts, Stennis also was involved in a record-setting commercial engine project. At the end of November, Stratolaunch Systems announced it had achieved the fastest preburner development in U.S. history, going from design to development to full-power testing in just 11 months. Stennis is partnered with Stratolaunch to test the preburner component for its new engine and helped the company achieve a full-power hot fire in less than a month of testing.

In addition, although it does not rank as a first, perhaps the most gratifying accomplishment of the year came late as all major activation work was completed on the B-2 Test Stand in preparation for testing SLS core and upper exploration stages.

Completion of final flow tests and a major "stress test" of the Stennis High-Pressure Gas Facility culminated six years of major restoration and renovation work and signaled the readiness of the stand and the Stennis supporting team for SLS testing. As in any year, however, Stennis achievement and accomplishment was not limited to the test complex. For instance, the Advanced Technology and Technology Transfer Branch continued its efforts to introduce Stennis-developed technology into the wider market. As evidence of its success, a number of Stennis employees received agencywide innovation and exceptional achievement awards from the NASA Space Technology Mission Directorate early in 2018.

The branch's work also was highlighted by development of the NASA Platform for Autonomous Systems toolkit, an evolutionary approach to systems management. As designed, the unique software toolkit allows fully autonomous capabilities to be implemented into any sort of system.

The most recent year offered highlights in other areas of Stennis life as well, including a change in leadership with the retirement of Associate Director Ken Human and the naming of Stennis engineer John Bailey as his successor; a range of outreach events focused on sharing the NASA and Stennis stories; a live linkup between summer Astro Camp students and astronaut Ricky Arnold aboard the International Space Station; continued test partnerships with commercial space companies; and ongoing efforts to promote STEM awareness among students of all ages.

Meanwhile, there is no time for rest. Testing already is scheduled across the Stennis test complexes headed into 2019, and the center will hit the new year ground running with NASA Day at the Capitol activities in mid-January. The upcoming year also should see arrival of the SLS "pathfinder," a core stage replica that will be installed on the B-2 Test Stand as a final "fit" test to prove the facility modifications will match and handle the actual flight stage. In other words, stay tuned for continued highlights.

Compretta & Ladner lead area All-Division selections

BY JOSEPH W. GEX, II
STAFF WRITER

There were several area athletes selected for the All-Division football teams which were recently released. Bay High, Pass Christian and Saint Stanislaus College all compete in Division 8-4A while the Hancock Hawks compete in Region 4-6A.

Linebackers Cade Compretta of Bay High and Trenton Ladner were selected as the defensive Most Valuable Players for their respective divisions following the season.

Compretta, a 6' 205-lb middle linebacker, was a tackling machine this past season for the Tigers (1-9). He tallied 137 tackles during the season to pace the area. Joining Compretta on the Division 8-4A defense were area student-athletes Nate McCormick (6'1", 237lbs, DL, St. Stanislaus), Jordan Calomese (6'3", 205lbs, DE, Bay High), Lee Negrotto (6'4", 190lbs, LB, St. Stanislaus), Reese Gorman (5'11", 210lbs, LB, Pass Christian), Trace Rhodes (5'10", 170lbs, S, St. Stanislaus), Larry James (5'9", 165lbs, DB, Bay

Cade Compretta

High), and Damonta May (6'1", 180lbs, DB, Pass Christian).

Several area student-athletes were named to the Division 8-4A offense including Gordon Ward

Trenton Ladner

(5'9", 230lbs, RB, Pass Christian), Chris Smith (6'1", 230lbs, FB, St. Stanislaus), Alex Rimmer (6'3", 270lbs, OL, St. Stanislaus), Dallas Payne (6'2", 170lbs, WR, St.

Stanislaus), Maxwell Lewis (5'7", 155lbs, WR, Bay High), and Brandon Bordelon (6'1", 180lbs, AP, St. Stanislaus).

Ladner was the Region 4-6A Defensive MVP after posting 129 tackles during the season. He was the only Hawk named to the defense. Joining Ladner on the All-Region team but on the offensive side of the ball is Blake Comeaux (5'10", 200lbs, RB, Hancock), Brooks Rayburn (6'1", 180lbs, WR, Hancock), Payton Miller (5'10", 185lbs, WR, Hancock), and Riley Welsh (6', 200lbs, LS, Hancock).

Ladner named Class 6A MAC All-State

BY JOSEPH W. GEX, II
STAFF WRITER

The only area student-athlete named to the Mississippi Association of Coaches All-State football team was Hancock High School linebacker Trenton Ladner.

Ladner, a 6'1" 225-lb four-year starter, had a solid senior season turning in a stat line of 129 total tackles with seven tackles for loss, a sack, two interceptions and a fumble recovery. He was also called on to play offense in short-yardage situations where he rushed for 123 yards on 19 carries and scored three touchdowns. He also added one reception for 14 yards.

The Hawks (4-7) missed out on the Class 6A state playoffs after going 10-2 in 2017 with a trip to the Class 6A state quarterfinals. Hawks head coach Neil Lollar commented on Ladner, "Trenton has been a consistent football player for us at Hancock. He had a great year with 129 tackles and two INTs. He is a four year starter that has gotten better each year and has the opportunity to continue to do so at the next level. That's hard to say about someone who totaled 515 tackles over his career. Our program is blessed to have someone like this represent Hancock at the state level."

And Mississippians count on their newspapers to keep apprised of public notice advertising.

Half of Mississippi adults recall reading or seeing public notice advertising in a local or state newspaper.

And almost half (46%) of adults who have seen public notice advertising prefer to receive them in a printed newspaper, much higher than any other source.

Most Mississippians (87%) say keeping the public informed through public notices and legal advertising is an important requirement for government agencies. And the preferred method of receiving these notices is in a printed newspaper along with their associated websites.

According to a 2013 Advertising and Media Use Survey*, legal ads in printed newspapers have a much higher credibility than other media.

Over 1.5 million Mississippians read their local newspaper. Whether in print, online or on the go, newspapers are the leading source of information for Mississippi.

Gary describes his favorite 2018 plants

DR. GARY R. BACHMAN
MSU EXTENSION SERVICE

2018 was quite a year in our Mississippi gardens and landscapes: hot and dry, humid and rainy. Every year, there are winners and losers when we garden, and such is the nature of the gardening game.

As we head into 2019, you know I'm going to talk about all the latest and greatest plants at our garden centers and nurseries. But that doesn't mean we should forget about past plants we've successfully grown and come to love.

Here are four of my favorites from 2018 that will be fantastic in the garden for years to come.

No. 1: Cool Wave pansies

I really like using Cool Wave pansies in the winter season. Cool Waves have a spreading growth habit that makes them perfect ground covers or great spiller plants in containers. These plants are well branched and fill in where they're planted.

Cool Waves are available in a variety of colors and provide great color all the way to spring. In 2018, I decided to go with Lemon Surprise and Blue Skies. I really like the combination of bright yellow and subtle blues. As always, I love the whisker lines that radiate from the center and resemble the delicate strokes of an artist's brush.

No. 2: Marigolds
I don't think there is a bedding plant better suited for our harsh summer conditions than the marigold.

Marigolds are great in-ground or in containers and add a cheerful and colorful brightness wherever they are planted.

Marigolds are free flowering from early summer to frost, but you should dead-head and remove the faded flowers. The two most widely available are commonly called the American and the French marigold. The American marigold, which is also often called the African marigold, is available in many series. These plants are recognizable for their pom-pom double flowers and feature colors of yellow, orange, dark orange and even white.

French marigolds are smaller in stature and have more flower variety. There are single and double flowers, and colors include yellow, orange and reds, along with stripes. French marigolds are generally less than 15 inches tall with a wider spread.

No. 3: Lemon Sedum
In my circle of gardening friends, one of the hottest groups of plants are the succulents. One that has caused quite a stir is the lemon sedum, a group of several selections with bright-chartreuse foliage. These sedums were selected as Mississippi Medallion Plants for 2018.

Lemon Coral has spiky, chartreuse foliage that spreads 12-24 inches. Its mounding growth habit is perfect for a filler plant in a combination container. Lemon Ball is another fantastic choice that is heat tolerant and has soft, succulent foliage. This plant grows about 6 inches tall with a spreading habit. An older selection is Angelina, which I've grown for about 5 years and still think it is one of the best sedums for foliage use.

No. 4: Superbells
I love the funnel-shaped flowers and the great growth potential of this plant. Superbells look great in containers, hanging baskets and massed in landscape beds. These are tough plants with good summer heat tolerance. The petite, cascading flowers are great in combinations and raised beds with good drainage.

One of the best selections I grew this year is Holy Moly!, which is exactly what I said when I first saw it. The bicolor flowers are stunning, and feature variable, mottled yellow and pink, and a cherry-red star.

When deciding what to plant in the garden, I think it's always good to look back and reflect on what plants performed well and which ones did not. I'm glad my experiences get to help home gardeners make some of these decisions next year.

Here's to growing a great garden in 2019.
